

CASA DRAGONES

TEQUILA REPOSADO

THE FIRST TEQUILA RESTED EXCLUSIVELY IN JAPANESE MIZUNARA OAK

ROBB REPORT

FOOD & WINE

CNN TRAVEL

FORBES

LOS ANGELES TIMES

ミズナラ樽で熟成

Casa Dragones Reposado Mizunara is the first tequila rested exclusively in new Mizunara casks, a rare oak native to Japan and traditionally used for aging Japanese whiskies. This delicately rested tequila delivers subtle notes of orange blossom, apricot and coffee bean. Perfect for the discerning reposado or Japanese whisky lover.

Casa Dragones Reposado is best served neat or with a small ice cube.

“A tequila to celebrate the finest Mexico can offer.”

—The New York Times

“Mexico meets Japan with this new, aged tequila”

—Robb Report

“I love the smooth texture and beautiful apricot notes of the Reposado Mizunara”

—*Chef Masa Takayama, Chef-Proprietor,
Masa & Bar Masa; Chef, Kappo Masa*

MIZUNARA OAK

Characterized by their twisting trunks and branches, these ancient trees can grow up to 200 years before they are harvested and then handcrafted into the highest quality casks in Japan.

CRAFTSMANSHIP OF RARE, JAPANESE OAK

Sharing a passion for exceptional craftsmanship, we began working with Japan's only independent cooperage to craft brand new casks of 100% Mizunara in which to rest our new tequila.

COMMITTED TO INNOVATION

Continuing our exploration of agave and woods, we imported our first Japanese casks in 2018, with the goal of exploring how this rare wood would complement the signature notes of Casa Dragones.

BODY & COLOR

Light, bright golden with a silky texture, and long pronounced legs.

AROMA

Orange blossom, magnolia with gentle notes of honey and sandalwood.

TASTE

Balanced notes of oak, butterscotch and apricot.

FINISH

Long finish with hints of coffee bean and mellow spice.

